The effect of barium on the amorphous solid-state conformation of amorphous choline phosphate. The effect of barium (Ba^{2+}) on the crystallization of amorphous choline phosphate (ACP) was studied by differential scanning calorimetry (DSC) and powder X-ray diffraction (PXRD). The ACP sample, prepared by spray-drying aqueous solutions of choline phosphate (PCP), was heated to three temperatures in the absence and presence of 10 and 100 mM Ba^{2+} . Crystallization was detected by DSC, and crystallinity was measured by the weight loss f678ea9f9e
